Virginia Gets Championship From Ancient Rivals-Neff's Relay Proves Feature Play.

Charlottesville, Va., April 25.—By taking to-day's game, 6 to 1, Virginia made it three straight ever North Carolina and eight victories in a row, Southpaw Gammon held the visitors to four scattered hits, Catcher Woodall securing two triples.

Watkins, the Carolina twirter, pitched a better game than the score would indicate. Virginia was able to bunch hits in only one inning, the lifth Paschall was safe on Shields's fumble and Phillips walked. Neff drove a single to right fleid, secring Paschall, and White's single to left registered Phillips and Neff. In the sixth Stickley doubled and counted on Paschall's single over second.

The feature was Neff's relay from deep centre, nailing Woodall at the home plate. The box score:

A study of the box score provides reveral interesting angles to the melce. Lefty Snyder, while not proving a wonderful demon on offense, came very rightly thought that john was gone law to study if not quite, breaking all records for the matter of consecutive puttors for an outfielder. He retired the visitors entirely in the seventh frame, and grabbed the first two putouts in the eighth, mailing a total of five Woerth being the faster man of the putous in any too casy. Question regarding this until we bumped broadside into the self-appointed champions of the Virginia League. At the present time, we have assailed them six times, and the count at present stands three and three, with the odds, if there be any, in our favor. For it was a very considerable beating that was handed to Mr. Harry Mathews and his pay earners yesterday afternoon.

Four in Third.

The third frame proved productive of four counters. Everybody but Edwards got a chance. Sloan struck out as his offering, but Dave Bunting, who, by the way, is playing a corking good game of baseball these days, beat his rap at Walters. Newton and Snyder both walked, filling the corners, and Dolly Gray hit into deep centre for three bases, clearing the sluces. He cashed on Woerth's rap to left for two cushions.

The remaining quartet came in the fourth. Bresnahan walked, but was forced by Sloan, after which the decimaling fire began in earnest. Bunting got his second bingle. Snyder rapped safely, and so did Gray, after which John Raley delivered with a two-ply slam. Krepps bungled Woerth's offer, and the total damage after having been edited was found to be four hits with as many runs.

After these two lucious periods the Colts rode easily, preferring to stop the invaders rather than to offer any offensive tacties. They were satisfied.

In his efforts to get a winner for Richmond, Ryan has the absolute and unqualified support of the owners. They are with him, and are not only with him, but are willing to go the limit in order to give local bugdom a team that is worthy the city.

Without being captious, Ryan needs pitchers. He has one man, Sloan, a good man, but one good man cannot win a pennant nor keep a team up in Jimmie Sullivan in 1912, but Sullivan suffered from weak defense, and his weakness in this direction lay in the ineffectiveness of his pitchers. It would be a great pity for Ryan to spoil his
